Delay Sale of Gilboa Reservoir For Unpaid Taxes

Supreme Court Justice Staley Adjourns Proceedings to Stay Sale of Waterworks by Schoharie County for $91,000 Unpaid Taxes.

An Albany despatch to the New York Herald Tribune of today says:

New York city's $26,000,000 waterworks at Gilboa, in Schoharie county, once more have been saved from sale for unpaid taxes by a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Otis J. Staley of Albany. Although refusing to grant a new stay to New York city to prevent Schoharie county selling the huge dam and reservoir at Gilboa for $91,000 unpaid taxes, Justice Staley has adjourned the case until December 3.

New York city protested its taxes levied by the county on the waterworks property and refused to pay. The county promptly took steps to proceed as against any other property owner in the county who refuses or is unable to pay his taxes. The county treasurer took steps to put the dam up for auction, but the city secured a stay.

It is expected that a decision in the New York city contest will be handed down soon. The city claims that the work at Gilboa is a municipal proposition and should not be taxed except as to the value of the land taken. The county claims that it should be assessed as to its improved value.

In declining to grant the city's motion for a renewal of the stay, Justice Staley declared that he doubted if the present stay was in order, as it was interfering with the machinery by which a government function. The county had a right to expect to collect its taxes, Justice Staley declared, and had a right to plan operations built upon such expectation, and no one had a right to interefere with the exercise of these rights.

However, Justice Staley said, he did not believe it equitable to jeopardize New York city's title in a $26,000,000 property for the sake of $91,000. While $91,000 was a considerable sum of money in Schoharie county, and the county no doubt could use that sum, if was no such a sum as to justify the confiscation of property worth millions.

The justice said he did not believe was the hope of the county to acquire full and actual possession of the dam. The probability was, however, that in the event of the Gilboa dam being auctioned, the county would have to bid it in, and there was a possibility than it some three years' time the county would come into full title to the city's waterworks.

SLIDES BLOCK ENTRANCE TO OLD QUARRY HOLE

The first slide occurred about two weeks ago and was followed by a second and larger slide which completely covered the entrance to the quarry. There are many men still living in the city who have entered the quarry at the blocked entrance and walked through it, emerging at the entrance at the head of Abruyn street in Wonckhockie.

License Plates Now Being Issued

Motor Car Owners Have Seven Weeks to Procure Them and Are Urged to Do So Early, As No Extension Will Be Granted.

The issuing of motor car license plates commenced today at the Motor Vehicle Bureau offices, 237 Fair street. Between now and January first all motor cars must be equipped with the plates or remain off the road. After January 1 until new plates are secured. There will be no extension of time after the first of the year. Ample time is given prior to January 1 to secure plates and no excuses will go after that date. Today was the first day for issuing 1928 plates and several were issued early in the morning.

Motor car owners are urged to get their plates early in order to avoid the last minute congestion at the office which always results by hundreds waiting until the last day to secure their registration tags.

The local office on Fair street is open every day from 9 o'clock in the morning and on Saturdays the office closes at noon. Plates this year are in the same combination of colors as last year but the figures are in orange and the background in black.

1927 Stub Required.

A new provision in the law aimed at the stolen car trade is in effect. Every application for renewal must be accompanied by the renewal stub from the 1927 license blank. This amendment which took effect last September, reads * * * "application for license shall contain, or be accompanied by, such evidence of ownership of the motor vehicle described in the application as may be required by the commissioner or his agent." This provision was designed to raise another barrier to disposal of stolen cars. While the renewal stub is accepted as evidence of ownership, still, if there is any doubt in the minds of the authorities as to the authenticity of signature, etc., they have wide power for taking any action they may deem necessary.

As regards new cars, a certificate of sale, sworn to by the dealer, containing the name and address of the purchaser, is a necessary matter of record.

As a matter of public protection all motorists must attach to the application blanks the renewal stub which was given with the 1927 certificate of registration. Those who are unable to procure this document must furnish an affidavit as to the reasons the paper is missing on a form provided by the Motor Vehicle Bureau. A fee of $1 must accompany each affidavit.

Get Plates Early.

If the motoring public will cooperate with the Motor Vehicle Bureau officials by securing their registration plates early, there will be no last minute congestion. With seven weeks to secure their new plates there is no excuse for anyone waiting until the last day or attempting to operate their car after January 1 without new plates.

52,285 Vehicles Use New Tunnel

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—With only a slight congestion during the peak of the traffic, 52,285 vehicles passed through the new Holland vehicle tunnel, running from New York to Jersey City under the Hudson river, during the first 24-hour period of its use ending at 12:01 o'clock this morning, according to figures issued at the tunnel administration offices.

Total receipts for the day were given as more than $30,000.

Two pleasure automobiles were towed from points near the New Jersey end of the tunnel. The tunnel emergency squad had its first call last night when a motor truck broke down near the Manhattan end. Within nine minutes after receipt of the call the truck had been pulled out of the tube.

Dennis Pierce Ends His Life

Stepfather of Mrs. Simon Dixon of Augusta Street Took Poison Sunday Night—Dead When Dr. Connelly Arrived on Hurry Call.

Dennis Pierce of Endicott, N. Y., who has been visiting at the home of his stepdaughter, Mrs. Simon Dixon, at 20 Augusta street, committed suicide Sunday night by taking poison and died before Dr. Daniel Connelly, who had been called, could reach the house.

Mr. Pierce appeared to be in his usual health that evening and before retiring to his room for the night had written a note addressed to his brother, and asked that it be mailed in the morning. He then went upstairs to his room. A few minutes later the family heard him fall to the floor. They ran upstairs and found him lying on the floor near the bed.

They immediately telephoned police headquarters, asking that the ambulance be sent. Dr. Connelly was also notified. When the police reached the house with the ambulance they found Mr. Pierce just breathing. Dr. Connelly arrived a few minutes later but the man was dead.

Coroner W. Norman Conner was notified of the sudden death and is making an investigation. This morning the coroner stated that death was caused by some kind of poison which he was having analyzed.

Pastor's Wife Found in Woods

Mrs. Forbush is Found Sleeping in a Shack Buried In a Heavy Woods —Could Give No Reason For Her Actions.

Claremont, N. H., Nov. 14 (AP).—A clergyman's wife for whom three states have been combed in a search lasting almost a month was temporarily reunited today with her husband, the Rev. Bascom B. Forbush, before being taken to a Baltimore Hospital where alienists, thrice before baffled by her strange malady, will attempt to restore the 30-year-old mother to health and her four children.

Mrs. Forbush was found by a 16 year old boy who stumbled upon her while sleeping in a wretched shack buried in a heavy woods, where she apparently had made her home for several weeks.

The woman disappeared from the lobby of a Washington, D. C., theatre on October 19 while she and Mr. Forbush, pastor of a church at Canandaigua, N. Y., were enroute to Florida on a motor trip which the minister hoped would improve his wife's health.

When found, Mrs. Forbush was worn and weak from days of wandering through woods in heavy rains and from exposure suffered by nights in the open. She smiled wanly as the boy accosted her and then accompanied police to the home of chief Daniel E. White, where she was fed and kept in seclusion until Mr. Forbush could be notified.

Once before the woman had disappeared and been found in this vicinity while scarcely a month ago she had fled from home only to be located near Schenectady after a search by more than two score residents of Ontario county, New York.

Although seemingly in a rational state of mind, Mrs. Forbush could give no reason for her actions in Washington further then that she did not wish "to bring shame" on her husband.

AUTO THIEVES LOCK THEMSELVES IN FACTORY

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 14 (AP).—Two auto thieves, pursued by an irate car owner in a commandeered truck, locked themselves in a factory with no way of escape today after they abandoned the stolen machine.

They gave their names as Eugene Callipoli, formerly of Brooklyn, and William Heath, of this city, when arraigned on a charge of grand larceny.

Alessio Romez was eating his breakfast in a downtown restaurant when the men drove away in his machine, parked in front of the place. He rushed out and jumped into a truck. Romez cornered the car on a bridge and the men ran to a plant. Pushing by a group of employes, they slammed shut the door and then discovered there was no other way out.

Callipoli told police he served a term in Elmira reformatory for robbery.

Seven Seized in Blackmail Ring

Arrested Following Slaying of Tailor Police Claim John Meighan Squealed and Ruined Plans Formed To Make Murder and Blackmail Pay Dividends.

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—A drunken holdup man whose blazing revolver summoned police to a murder at the start of his first "job," was said by authorities today to have ruined plans for a seven-handed partnership formed to make murder and blackmail pay dividends through the medium of an expensively outfitted woman decoy.

After a thirty hour roundup in which every alleged member of the gang was arrested, one of whom was charged with the murder of Max Gray, a tailor, police said they had wrecked the most ambitious venture into crime since the days of Richard Reese Whittemore.

Immediately after the shooting of Gray when he resisted an armed robber in his shop Saturday night, John Meighan a former Subway motorman, was caught running from the scene. Meighan "squealed," police said, and seven other arrests followed.

Detectives said the initial holdup was intended to raise funds to equip pretty eighteen year old Emily Thomas with a fashionable wardrobe that she might act as lure in the gang's blackmail system.

They had planned their operations over several quarts of gin Saturday afternoon, detectives asserted. That evening William Murphy, 27, a twice convicted criminal, went with Meighan to the tailor shop. After the shooting of Gray, Meighan, befuddled with drink, ran into the arms of a policeman. Murphy escaped. But Meighan talked.

His disclosures led to the arrests of William Murphy, charged with homicide; Charles Hand, 35, violation of the fire arms law; Howell Evans, 24, Harold Callister, 31, Harold Collister, 28, and Emily Thomas, held as material witnesses. Meighan was also held on a homicide charge but detectives said they thought him innocent of complicity of the murder. Mrs. Charles Hand, also taken in the roundup, was released.

Pays for Brutal Murder of Wife

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 14 (AP).—Three dollars in cash and two diamond rings stripped from a lifeless hand were the price police said Alvin Greenwaldt paid for the slaying of his wife, Emma, the wife with whom he had lived for 15 years with never a quarrel.

Greenwaldt who is 36, and Arthur K. Paetzold, alias Jelly, 12 years younger, are held in the Waukesha, Wis., jail for the crime, committed a week ago, and it was on confessions the two are said to have made that police revealed details of the killing.

Insurance carried on Mrs. Greenwaldt's life was the motive which Greenwaldt said led to the killing. There was $10,000 life and $15,000 accident insurance.

Paetzold was the actual slayer, according to the confessions, strangling Mrs. Greenwaldt to death as she sat between him and her husband in a coupe bound for Mt. Horeb, Wis., the Greenwaldt's home in Milwaukee.

The money Greenwaldt confessed paying Paetzold was all the cash he had. The rings, which were taken from his wife's hand after her body had been lifted from the coupe, were valued at $500. Greenwaldt in the confession said he had promised $500 more as soon as he collected the insurance.

14 Killed; 500 Hurt In Pittsburgh Explosion

Natural Gas Storage Tank Explodes Spreading Death and Destruction Over Square Mile Area—Dig Into Ruins of Scores of Buildings For More Bodies Believed Buried In Debris.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 (AP).—Fourteen persons were known to have met death and more than 500 were injured, some seriously, here today when a giant natural gas storage tank at the Manchester Works of the Equitable Gas Company exploded, spreading death and destruction over an area one square mile. Firemen, police and volunteer rescuers were digging into the ruins of scores of buildings in the belief that others had been killed and their bodies buried in the debris.

Indications that the death toll would increase was found in one wrecked building alone—the plant of the Pittsburgh Clay Pottery Company. One hundred and fifty men escaped from the building with cuts and bruises, while eight or ten others, trapped in the basement, were believed to have been drowned by the water rushing in from broken mains in the street. Firement were pumping out the basement in an effort to locate additional bodies. Meantime, hundreds of firemen and rescuers were digging into other piles of debris, searching for victims.

With a shock like that of an earthquake, the huge tank, containing several million cubic feet of gas, was rent asunder.

George Rowland, safety department representative of the Equitable Company, expressed the belief that gas, leading from one tank into another supposedly empty tank upon which workmen were making repairs, caused the disaster. Twelve men and a foreman were using acetylene torches to make the repairs when the blast occurred, he said. He thought that gas from the gas-filled tank leaked to the other container and was ignited by the torches.

The tank, containing 5,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas, let loose with a terrific blast. Practically every building in the vicinity was wrecked, and windows over a wide area were shattered, including some in downtown department stores and office structures.

When the tank burst, a ball of fire, higher than the adjacent tip of Mount Washington, shot into the air, spreading out like a fan.

Firemen and police volunteer workers expressed the belief that scores of persons, in their home and in factories of the region, had been trapped when the building collapsed.

Wild Confusion.

The scene of the disaster was one of wild confusion. Residents of the thickly settled district rushed about the streets as if mad. Women sought their children while men dug into the debris of their homes in an effort to bring out some loved one trapped in the wreckage.

The force of the blast ripped down all telephone and light wires, knocked over poles and caused houses to tumble. Streets in the ill-fated region bulged, breaking sewer and water pipes.

Every policeman in the city was ordered to duty. They roped off an area one mile square, to keep back the thousands who rushed to the scene. Private automobiles and trucks were commandeered to take injured to hospitals, and within a short time every hospital in the city was jammed, and the firemen were forced to set up emergency first aid stations at the scene.

The first eleven bodies taken to the morgue was workmen.

Pieces of the tank steel supports, some weighing more than 100 pounds, were found a mile from the scene. A street car, three blocks from the tank when it let go, was wrecked and every passenger aboard was hurt. Many school children, in a nearby school yard, were cut by flying glass when the windows in the structure were shattered.

Between 500 and 600 Injured.

It was estimated by hospital officials that between 500 and 600 were injured, some seriously. Many of the injured staggered to the Presbyterian and Allegheny general hospitals, and at the latter institution so many of the victims walked in that the steps leading to the main door were spattered with blood. Most of the injured had been cut and hurt by flying glass and debris.

The gas works, on Reedsdale street, north side, was said to employ more than three hundred men, but how many of these were at work at the time was not known.

Launch Investigations.

Coroner W. J. McGregor, for Allegheny county, Fire Chief R. L. Smith for the city of Pittsburgh, and officials of Philadelphia Company, of which the Equitable Company is a subsidiary, immediately launched investigations of the fatal blast.

In some instances, where factories did not collapse, all employes were hurt. This was true of the Pittsburgh Iron Bed Company, where the entire personnel of fifty men needed hospital attention. Entire families, fathers, mothers and children, residents of the district who escaped death, were removed to hospitals.

Mexico's Part in Nicaragua Revolt

Disclosure of Documents Supports Claim of President That Revolution Was Fomented and Supported by Mexico.

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Washington Herald, a Hearst paper, today published a copyrighted article in which were incorporated facsimiles of documents said to have come from secret files of the Mexican government supporting the claim of President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg that the recent Nicaraguan revolution was fomented and supported by Mexico.

One document, dated June 2, 1926, purported to be an order for payment of $50,000 to Dr. Pedro Jose Zepedro, Mexican representative of Dr. Jaun B. Sacasa, who led the revolt, for the express purpose of purchasing arms and ammunition for the insurrectionists. As published, it bore the signature of President Calles. Other orders purported to call for payment of sums ranging from $5,000 to $25,000 to Zepedro and Dr. Carlos Leon, for performance of secret mission confided to each, they said, by President Calles or the chief of the presidential staff. The arms were charged in the documents to the secret expenses of the presidential staff.

The Herald said that these papers, and more to be published later, were brought to this country by Mexican officials and obtained from them by Hearst newspapers. All, it declared, would be placed at the disposal of the state department and of congress.

Explaining American intervention in Nicaragua, President Coolidge in a message to Congress early in the year, asserted that the Nicaguan revolution was being fostered by the Mexican government and a few days later, Secretary Kellogg issued a statement supporting the views of the president and declaring that Bolshevism had gained a foothold in Central America.

Considerable controversy was precipitated and the subject was debated at length on the floors of the Senate and House.

The Herald article said that at the time of Secretary Kellogg's statement he had not the documentary evidence to support his claim. It declared, too, that the paper was in possession of information seriously implicating the government of Russia.

Canada's Eskimo Are Contented

Two Thousand of Them Occupy Baffin Island, Which Is Capable of Sustaining Them—Canadian Medical Official Makes Long Tour.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 14.—Dr. Canada's Eskimo inhabitants of Baffin Island, subscribing public are in several health. Baffin Island although not as pleasant a place for the white man as more southern districts, nevertheless capable of supporting a vigorous and contented population. These are the interesting points in a report just filed with the Dominion Government by Dr. Ia B. Livingstone, Canadian medical officer, Dr. Livingstone recently returned from fifteen months duty in the Canadian Arctic archipelago.

Since 1922, Dr. Livingstone has been a member of each annual expedition to the Canadian Arctic. At various ports of call, he has examined the native Eskimo. Following the conclusion of the 1926 patrol Dr. Livingstone spent the winter of 1926-27 and the summer and spring of this year in a detailed inspection of the natives in the interior, whom it had not been possible to see on his previous visits.

In the early spring of this year, Dr. Livingstone made his base at Pangnirtung, on Cumberland Gulf. One of his first duties was to deal with an epidemic of chicken-pox. The post and surrounding districts were quarantined for six weeks; but the outbreak was stamped out without loss of life.

Plentiful Supply of Seals.

Previous to this, Dr. Livingstone began his patrol work. In two long trips undertaken, the government official covered a combined distance of nearly 2,200 miles, in the course of which about twenty-five villages were visited. On these trips, Dr. Livingstone found that the Eskimos had a plentiful supply of seals and other wild life upon which the natives depend for food and clothing. Of the six cases which he treated, only two were of a serious character.

The first of these remarkable medical inspection patrols was begun on February 14 and lasted fifty-one days. Two officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and native Eskimo drivers accompanied the medical officer.

At the upper end of Cumberland Gulf, the party crossed the river and followed the eastern coast line to Cape Haven and into Frobisher Bay. From that point, they made their way overland to Lake Harbour, the site of the new post on Hudson Strait. For one hundred thirty miles the party progressed westward long the coast and then began the return journey.

Followed Uncharted River.

The travelers moved northward to Amadjuak Lake, and, following its southern shore for a distance, struck a new route, by way of an uncharted river to Pangnirtung. This new route, it was found, reduced the time of the journey by several days. The post at Pangnirtung was finally reached after an all-round trip of 1,100 miles.

Twenty days afterwards, and accompanied by a native driver only, Dr. Livingstone began a patrol northward along the east coast of Baffin Island. The trip was concluded on June 5; and the distance covered is estimated at 1,028 miles. Heavy falls of new snow retarded the progress of the party; and at one time, the patrol was snowed in at the mouth of Scott river for several days, during which period three dogs were lost. As the patrol neared the end of its journey, the coast was found to be badly charted and three days were lost in ascending an arm of the sea which had been mistaken for Pond Inlet.

Seal meat was the chief food consumed by the patrol party during their journeys. Biscuits, flour, rolled oats, tea, sugar and evaporated fruits supplemented the main food of sustenance. Coal oil was used for cooking and seal oil for heating. Snow houses were used during the winter patrol and a double silk tent in spring.

14 Killed in Pittsburgh Blast

was Joe Harris, a negro resident of the wrecked district. His body, taken to the morgue, was identified by friends. Little effort was being made to identify other victims.

Some of the larger plants wrecked included the Union Paint Company, the Standard Plate Glass Company warehouses and the Warren-Herbert Roofing Company.

Fear More Deaths.

It was feared the death list would grow to a great extent because many of those in hospitals were reported in a critical condition. Doctors said that many of the victims had suffered internal hurts.

In the lists of victims at Mercy Hospital was Paul Mundeski, his wife and four children.

An additional victim was added to the death list when George Lowengate died of injuries in Allegheny General Hospital.

Among the injured at one hospital was Mrs. T. J. Mullen and her 11 months old twin sons, James and William.

Several hours after the blast occurred rescuers were finding it hard ...ver into the center of the wrecked district.

In the midst of the section was the city asphault plant, and here it was reported 15 employes had been killed or injured. The plant, across the street from the tank, was a total wreck.

Even pedestrians on downtown streets did not escape the blast. Many persons were cut by glass when large department store windows were shattered.

The blast occurred as the police courts of the city got under way. Magistrates immediately adjourned court and rushed the police to the scene.

Hand Cut by Bottle.

This morning while Robert Parsons employed by the Port Ewen Dairy on Shufeldt street, was delivering a bottle of milk on Ora Place, he stumbled and fell, cutting his hand severely on the milk bottle he was carrying, which broke as he fell. Seeing a light in the Kingston Dairy on Downs street he hurried over and found Ralph Terwilliger still at work. Mr. Terwilliger applied first aid and managed to stop the bleeding. He found that the milk bottle had inflicted two bad cuts on Parsons's hand and arm.

Right to Testify Denied Carol

Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 14 (AP).—The right to testify in defense of a former cabinet minister, charged with plotting to bring about his return and his ascension of the Rumanian throne, has been denied to former Crown Prince Carol.

Mihial Manoilescu, former under secretary of finance, in the two days that he was on the stand in his own defense, attempted to show that the exiled prince had the interest of his country at heart and that his addication two years ago was not due to personal idiosyncrasies, but to his treatment by the present premier, Ionel Bratiano.

Then those who are defending Manoilescu demanded that Carol, who is in France be called as a witness.

"He must come, in order to prove that he never thought of returning except as a member of the regency," shouted M. Theodoreanu, criminal lawyer for Manoilescu, who maintained that Carol sought not the throne but to act as one of the three regents who rule for the six year old King Michael.

Sights White Airplane at Sea

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Radio Corporation of America announced receipt of a radiogram at 10:50 a. m. today from the master of the French liner Ile de France, at sea, reporting the sighting of a White airplane "traveling very high over head".

The Radio Company said the French captain reported the plane was traveling west northwest. The ship's position was given at latitude 42.22 north, longitude 61.05 west, or about 100 miles south southwest of Sable Island.

NEW WINDOW LIGHTING SYSTEM FOR CANFIELD CO.

While the Canfield Supply Company has been in business 77 years and is the oldest wholesale house in the United States selling electric supplies, still it is right up-to-date in its methods.

There has been an increased demand recently for better lighting of store windows and the Canfield Company has recently surveyed the lighting field and availed themselves of the services of Richard Dawe, superintendent of lighting for the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. Mr. Dawe outlined a very complete and adequate lighting system for their three large windows on the Strand, and on the advice of Mr. Dawe the company has installed a modern lighting system, consisting of 39 sterling silver reflectors each holding a Westinghouse high power Mazda lamp. In addition each window is equipped with Sterling floodlights which are to furnish intense illumination for any special merchandise to be displayed. Each window is controlled by a Tork clock which automatically turns off the lights at any desired hour.

This is one of the most up-to-date window lighting systems in the city, and it is hoped that many other merchants throughout the city will follow the example to make Kingston one of the bright spots in the Hudson River Valley.

Black Velvet Gown and Black Satin Headgear

Displaying the popular black velvet street dress with a black satin hat of original design. The gown features the long-bloused bodice with white vestee and sleeve puffs of lace. Black satin pumps with silver leather trimming complete the outfit.

Fringe Is Much Used on Blouses This Season

Fringe is being used lavishly with many of the new blouses. On a charming evening gown of ruby crepe long fringe is put on in sections, breaking the monotony of straight lines. In an ensemble of blue crepe and cloth, the dress is made with bias folds in three shades, from the bodice to the hem line, and the coat, which is cut full length, has a collar of brown fur. An all-black evening gown is trimmed with a fringe in deep points and a soft girdle is swathed about the hips, with deep sash ends at one side. A modest frock of dead black georgette has long, floating draperies, the somberness being relieved with one large aquamarine buckle. A dignified dinner frock of beige moire has two tiers of the silk on the skirt and a large chou of black tulle at one side. Rather startling is the combination of black and white—the skirt of black cloth, a white jersey striped in lavender and black, with a modish strap belt, and a long black coat with black fox collar.

Picture frocks are shown by most of the best couturiers and make an irresistible appeal. One contribution to this vogue is an afternoon gown of tan chiffon on which are printed small flowers in pretty colors. The chiffon is arranged in floating panels and the bodice is finished with a quaintly draped fichu.

Velveteen Is Stressed for Girls' School Wear

The importance of velveteen in the wardrobe of the growing girl is attested by every autumn collection. From the time we are six to seven years old we start wearing 'em—those velveteen jackets borrowed from grown-up modes. The past summer many small girls wore them over crepe and cotton frocks, and for school wear they are being used extensively to top frocks of jersey, cashmere, tweed and wool crepe.

Frocks of checked wool, topped by such wraps in harmonizing tone, are delightful for the schoolgirl and have been worked out in many color combinations. Brown velveteen with plaided wool in beige and brown is only one of a group in which may be mentioned black-and-white checks completed by black velveteen jackets.

Wearing Long Sleeves in New Evening Gowns

Dinner dresses with long sleeves are frequent in winter styles. Chiffon, flat crepe and satin dresses frequently have fitted sleeves which make them suitable for bridge dresses as well as evening.

In many respects these long-sleeved dinner dresses resemble the silk dresses of summer with sleeves sewed in, and many an economical Parisian is adding sleeves, wherever possible, to her last summer's frock.

A change in color, a new belt or ornament and an old dress appears in fresh guise. It has been a long time since the leading dressmakers suggested anything so practical.

Dotted Challis House Dresses

If you are wondering whether your printed cotton and linen house dresses will be comfortably warm for fall and winter days, and realize that they will soon look too summery, get one or two challis ones. Polka dot challis, which was popular for house dresses a few years ago, is back again.

New Slipper Buckles

Smart opera pumps for fall wear have cut steel or bronze buckles that are very much larger than any seen for years.

LUTHER LEAGUE RALLY LARGELY ATTENDED

The Luther League Rally service service at the Spring Street Lutheran Church on Friday night was well attended and the visiting leagues from West Camp, Saugerties and Athens having sent large delegations, almost two hundred guests were seated at the tables for luncheon in the church basement.

During the service the chief speaker was the Rev. W. G. Boomhauer, pastor in Cobleskill, N. Y., who delivered a most inspiring address.

The Rev. Mr. Richards, pastor in Athens, explained the objectives of the Luther League of America in a very interesting manner.

The committee of the local league endeavored to make the reception of the visiting leagues a pleasant and friendly one in the church basement. The church orchestra furnished several selections which were highly appreciated. Saban Melek pleased the audience admirably with several solos.

The president of the District Luther Leagues, Mr. Williams of Poughkeepsie, brought copies of community songs with him, which were sung with great enthusiasm by all and accompanied on the piano by Miss Elizabeth Liebig.

STREET FENCES.

A Detroit engineer, who has been making a city traffic survey, has a new scheme to foil the jaywalker. He would build fences right down the middle of the street, leaving openings only at the regular sidewalk crossings and street intersections.

That, obviously, would make it harder for pedestrians to meander across busy streets at places where motorists have no reason to expect them, and would save many lives. Some pedestrians, no doubt, would climb over the fence, but most of them would take the hint.

In a way, this would be natural from another point of view. The fence would be merely an accentuation of the white line now drawn along the middle of many streets in congested sections or at dangerous spots, to keep the right and left traffic lines separate. It would serve as a useful barrier to careless drivers as well as walkers, and one more thing for motor cars to crash against.

PROGRESS AND LOSS.

The human face has been growing finer, but weaker. This change, in the course of recent centuries, is vouched for by Viscountess Molesworth of England, after a study of ancestral portraits and a comparison of the pictured faces with those of the same family lines, still living. "The living descendants," she says, "are more refined of countenance, but much of the rugged strength displayed in the faces that stare down at me from the old canvases has disappeared. In many cases even the typical family look has died out."

This, no doubt, is to be expected. One of the biggest problems of civilization is to gain refinement without losing strength—physical strength and strength of character. Modern life makes things easier for mankind in many ways, encouraging softness. And softness is likely to lead to physical and moral disintegration.

Don't take too much of the struggle out of a child's life, in the home and school and playground and workshop. When struggle ends, there is no more progress.

SENSATIONAL MEMOIRS.

When Pepy's Diary, the masterpiece of its kind, was deciphered and brought to light about a century ago England was not greatly shocked by the scandalous pictures of the Restoration period because it was so remote. But scandalous gossip about prominent English folk of the near Victorian age was a very different matter. So when volumes of the Greville memoirs went to the printer in 1875 and further volumes in 1885 and 1887, parts of the author's outspoken accounts were suppressed. Recently these suppressed portions got into print and were found to reflect upon persons in the highest circles of society and even members of the royal family. Naturally there was a mighty clacking of tongues, the wide protest including the expressed displeasure of King George himself. Eminent persons being mentioned by name, the excitement was far greater than followed the publication in this country of the novel, "Revelry", which, while vividly picturing the corruption in Washington under the Harding administration, left the reader to guess the identity of all the characters represented.

The present attempt to discredit the Greville memoirs as a whole will fail because of their established reputation. Of the expurgated early editions the Encyclopedia Britannica says: "These journals were regarded as a faithful record of the impressions made on a competent observer of events. Perhaps no English memoir writer has left a more valuable contribution to the history of the nineteenth century."

MORE REWRITTEN HISTORY.

The request of "Lo, the poor Indian", is both interesting and touching. If American history is to be rewritten under the supervision of Mayor Thompson, the educated young Indians not unreasonably want their race, the original Americans, to get a "fair show". As might be expected, they claim that their ancestors have been grossly misrepresented and that the ruthless white conquerors of the country have been shamelessly whitewashed. They say that according to the white man's history their forefathers were savage, treacherous and bloodthirsty, when in fact they were defending their possessions from the invaders as best they could, and that the Indian wars of the last three centuries were due to the white man's insatiable greed for land—all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Put yourself in the red man's place for just a minute, and it will not be difficult to find cause for his complaint or to see logic in his argument.

And there is a reason why both the logic and the argument ought to appeal to "Big Bill" Thompson, the American pioneers being mostly of British extraction and everything even remotely connected with England being anathema in his sight. But, unfortunately for them, the Indians lack influence everywhere, and particularly in Chicago, because they lack votes. As for "Big Bill", he has an eye single to the votes of the "new Americans" and aims to make sure of them by pouring hot shot into the old Americans of British extraction. Apparently the "new Americans" of Chicago, and particularly the Germans, hold the balance of power there, and thus are readily able to pull the string that will make Big Bill dance. Under the circumstances, including the kind of revision of history he finds needful, it is obvious that he has no time to waste on a handful of Indians, however just theoretically their claims may be.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

NEGLECTING "INDIGESTION".

You have perhaps seen one of your friends gradually growing so thin that you have taken it for granted he was a victim of tuberculosis, or consumption as it is commonly called.

You learn however that he just has "indigestion", that is nothing really serious.

However you learn a little later that he has an "ulcer" of the stomach, and that the matter is really serious.

Now an ulcer here is the same as an ulcer anywhere else, that is an actual hole is being worn in the lining of the stomach or intestinal wall. And of course just as an ulcer on the skin of any part of the body will not get better if it is kept irritated, so the ulcer of the stomach has a difficult time trying to heal with food and the digestive juices irritating it.

By means of the barium meal and the X-ray, the exact location of the ulcer can be located.

Two British physicians report the effect of medical treatment in seventeen cases, which they followed by the above means for two years, and as the ulcer began to heal the X-ray would show the spot growing smaller and smaller, until it finally disappeared.

Sometimes when the symptoms grew severe again it was found that the ulcer had returned.

However that they can heal completely, and thus enable the individual to avoid an operation, has been proven in thousands of cases.

Dr. R. Lynch of Montreal, analyses the record of 944 cases of stomach and intestinal ulcer, and shows that 62½ per cent of stomach ulcers, and 79 per cent of the intestinal ulcers, were cured by medical treatment alone.

The point then is that where "indigestion" becomes a constant condition the possibility of an ulcer should be immediately considered, because a smooth diet may be all that is necessary to enable the ulcer to heal.

A neglected ulcer may mean many months of careful dieting with the possibility of an operation later.

So don't neglect to consult your family physician when your "indigestion" fails to clear up in a few days.

Free speech is to a great people what winds are to oceans and malarial regions, which waft away the elements of disease and bring new elements of health. And where free speech is stopped, miasma is bred and death comes fast.—Henry Ward Beecher.

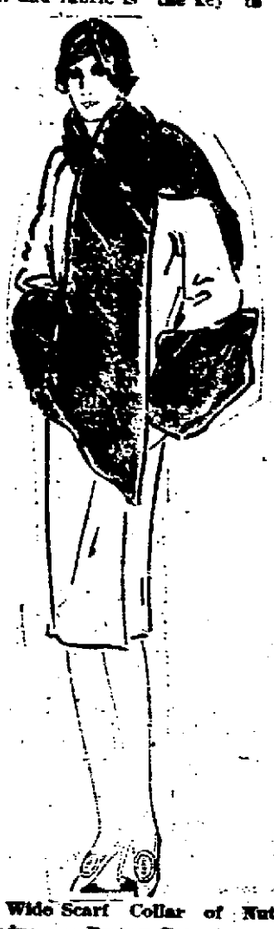
CONTRAST BETWEEN FUR AND FABRIC IS A FEATURE OF WINTER COATS — VELVET CONTINUES IMPORTANT.

New York.—According to the head of one of the most exclusive New York shops, the importance of velvet in both daytime and evening coats is one of the items of greatest interest in the winter coat situation. The smartest women are buying them, it is declared at this shop. In addition to this fact, a preference for fur-haired instead of long furs is noted. Krimmer in the black and gray suabre colorings is particularly mentioned, and gallinsky, martin, and fitch are also included.

As far as cloth coats are concerned, fabrics in the cashmere and broadcloth family are proving themselves leaders, while in the sports category, tweeds have no rival. Frequently a striking contrast between fur and fabric is the key to chic.



A Wide Scarf Collar of Nutria Introduces a Deeper Tone into This Model of Sand-Colored Suede Cloth. The Loose, Deep Cuffs Have Their Points Shifted to the Outer Edge of the Sleeves.

The most usual interpretation of this idea is noted in the case of beige cashmere coats deeply collared and cuffed with beaver, nutria, or otter. A sand-colored coat with skunk collars and cuffs is an attractive combination, while reversing the order. We note with interest coats in dark oxford gray with gray caracul or krimmer furring.

In women's departments, reports on what smart women are choosing always include the coat of broadtail cloth.

The moderately low armhole and the dropped shoulder-line are details in the styling of coats of which it is well to be aware. They insure an easy fit and are, in addition, more fashionable than the closely-fitted armhole, except, of course, in the case of the severely fitted tailleur.

DAINTY FOODS

Oranges in any form are always welcome in our food. The following recipe makes a tasty dessert:

Orange Soufflé.—To the whites of three eggs add a small pinch of salt and beat until stiff, then add gradually three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Beat the yolks of the eggs until light, add six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and stir in enough orange juice to thin to the consistency of coffee cream. Into this fold carefully one-half of the beaten whites, turn into a baking dish and cook in a dish of water until it puffs. Spread over the top the pulp of three oranges, cover with the remainder of the whites and set into the oven to brown lightly. The reason for adding the oranges after the first cooking is that they become bitter if cooked for a longer time.

Roquefort Salad Dressing.—Cream two ounces of Roquefort cheese, using a wooden spoon. Gradually beat in four to six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two to three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a scant half teaspoonful of salt and paprika. This is especially good on head lettuce.

Wild fowl is most appetizing with:

Ripe Olive Sauce.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one sliced onion and cook until slightly brown. Remove the onion and stir to a smooth paste with the butter and five tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and cook with two cupfuls of brown stock, adding gradually until well cooked. Cut the meat from a dozen ripe olives, cover with water and cook seven minutes, then add to the sauce.

Savory Potatoes.—Arrange nine medium-sized potatoes in a shallow baking dish, add one-fourth cupful of water, six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two onions finely minced, one tablespoonful of powdered sage, one teaspoonful of salt and pepper to season. Bake one hour or until the potatoes are soft.

Has Had Ten Capitals

North Carolina has had at least ten capitals, including Bath, Edenton, Brunswick, Wilmington, Newberry, Hillsboro, Smithfield, Fayette and Raleigh. The reason for so many lay in the custom prior to 1791 of transferring the seat of government to the place of residence of the governor or the temporary meeting place of the assembly.

In 1791 one square mile of land was purchased for the foundation of Raleigh as the permanent seat of government. At present the city covers four square miles.

Something Like an Egg

If the average husband eats two eggs every morning for breakfast and the wife uses six eggs in a cake and devils a dozen more for the family dinner and bakes two cream custard pies every week, it would take nearly five weeks for the average family to consume the contents of an ancient giant ostrich egg that reposes in the Natural History museum of the University of Illinois.

Pleas for Pets Deluge MacNider

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—"Well, what a dog you sent me," written in childish scrawl, more than rewarded Assistant Secretary Hanford MacNider for his efforts in getting a pup to a Philadelphia youngster recently but a flood of new requests is now deluging his mail with a correspondence unique in the prosaic files of the war department. He has been asked for dogs, ponies and even husbands in the last few days.

A New Orleans youngster noted that the Philadelphia pup was a "good one".

"Now I have three dogs, common ones, and I love them but I do so want a police dog," he said.

Two sisters, eleven and eight, in Chicago, notified the secretary that "mother does not want a cat" but that a "nice dog" would be quite all right.

A Chicago boy, addressing MacNider as "Dear Mr. Captain", said reading of the Philadelphia dog incident had given him a thought "about me having a dog a long time ago."

"He died on me," the letter added. "That day still comes back to me."

Another Chicago request was for "a police dog, small size", but a Berwyn, Ill., youngster insisted that "I don't care what kind of a dog it is, as long as I have one," while still another bespoke a dog of "any kind and color".

An ink bespattered missive from a Pennsylvania seven-year-old wanted "a bull terrior or a Spanish puppy".

MODENA.

Modena, Nov. 14.—A Gun and Rod Club is being organized in Modena and a meeting was held one evening last week at Miller's Hotel for the purpose of making plans. About thirty-five people were present. Elsworth Miller was a caller in Poughkeepsie Friday.

Mrs. Mary Smith is moving from J. E. Hasbrouck's tenant house, opposite Modena Garage, to her bungalow near Gardiner.

The town board met at the town clerk's office Friday afternoon of the past week.

VIOLATORS VERY SCARCE.

Hunters and Fishermen Unite in Obeying the Law.

Albany, Nov. 11.—"The combined efforts of all the protectors have failed to find a really serious and wilful violation of the conservation law committed by a resident of this division during the entire summer season", said Inspector Underhill at a recent meeting of the inspectors in the office of the Conservation Department. "This is very different from what it used to be when jacking deer and killing them on salt licks was a common practice, while dynamiting and netting fish was also carried on during the summer months. We also find that the foreign-born citizens have laid aside their guns to a great extent during the closed season and it is very seldom that the protectors find one afield with a gun between seasons. These conditions have been brought about, I believe, by the efficient work of the protectors along with the assistance of the sportsmen, and the general public, who are giving us wonderful support".

Industry Spends Most for Research

Dollars Spent by Industrial Corporations for Every Dollar Spent by Government in This Important Line—Other Organizations Also Spend Large Sums.

New York, Nov. 14.—About $200,000,000 annually is being spent in the United States for industrial research by industrial corporations and by the federal government, with industry spending two dollars for every one spent by the government, according to information collected by the National Industrial Conference Board, 247 Park avenue, New York, incidental to a study of industrial organization.

So rapid has been the extension of research work as a necessary auxiliary to industrial management and technique that, whereas in 1921 only 578 companies were known to maintain research departments or laboratories, more than 1,000 concerns have organized research divisions in operation at the present time. In addition, 70 trade associations are spending about $15,000 a year in research, and 152 colleges and technical schools about $1,500,000. Furthermore, there is much technical research work being carried on in connection with industrial production, the costs of which are not segregated as such but are accounted for as part of production costs and hence are not included in the total sum here given.

Industries whose research expenditures were largest five years ago are those which have scored the greatest relative growth since then, according to the data submitted to the Conference Board. The greatest amount spent by any one single manufacturing company among those from which the board has detailed statements in 1926 was more than $5,250,000, while a public utility corporation spent approximately $13,000,000 within the year. Manufacturing companies were found to spend on an average from one to three per cent of the gross amount received from sales on research.

Whereas in former times invention, as the product of individuals generally without means or ability to give practical expression to their dreams, had to wait on chance and capital to become available to the world, modern industry anticipates invention by systematic cooperative research, continuous and planned in accordance with definite objectives. Large as is the amount of money spent for industrial research by industrial corporations, by technical schools, universities and the government, it does not include other large sums spent for research work of great variety done continuously by life insurance companies, privately endowed social, economic and charitable institutions, which are particularly numerous in the United States, or the research work done by state and local governments, nor does it take into account the expenditures of commercial research organizations selling their services to others on a fee basis.

New England Has Big Road Damage

Hundreds of Miles of Main Roads Out of Commission in New England—Damage to Roads Alone Will Amount to Millions of Dollars, American Automobile Association Finds.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—While the waters of the recent flood in New England are now rapidly receding, it will probably be two weeks before some of the main roads affected will be in condition for travel, according to a statement from the National Headquarters of the American Automobile Association today.

The A. A. A. statement estimated that hundreds of miles of main highways are affected and that the total damage to roads as a result of the flood will mount to millions of dollars.

Road conditions as outlined by the national motoring body today are based on telegraphic reports from a score of A. A. A. member clubs in New England. Since conditions are changing rapidly, motorists passing through the stricken region are strongly advised to secure detailed information from these clubs at frequent intervals. The A. A. A. statement continued:

"Conditions are bad in the vicinity of Montpelier and it may be two weeks before main roads are passable. Ferries are operating between Port Kent, N. Y., and Burlington, and State Route No. 7 is open from Burlington to Pittsfield, with detours at East Arlington and Rutland.

"Main roads in the vicinity of Pittsfield, Mass., are now nearly all open, with detours on route to Springfield. Roads through the Naugatuck Valley and between Winsted and Canaan, Connecticut, are inundated.

"North and south roads along the Connecticut River are passable, with short detours and with water slowly receding.

The run down system then needs such a body builder as Father John's Medicine which restores weakened tissue and gives fighting strength. Seventy years of success. No alcohol or harmful drugs.

When we are History

WHEN the world has spun on until 1926 seems quaint and bygone, historians will be writing our social history . . . how we lived and worked and played.

THEY will get their material from the old files of our daily newspapers. And how carefully they will study the advertisements, because it is advertising that truly reflects the customs of our times.

BUT, while our advertising will be interesting to the historians of tomorrow, it is more than interesting to us of today . . . it is vital. For advertising brings news of all that is best in our daily life. The pleasant things. The useful things. Things that lighten our burdens. Help us in our daily work. Bring ease, comfort and color into our lives.

IN short, advertising shows us the way to get more out of living.

Fer to see the doin's there.
Grief an' sorrer, hope an' pleasure,
All the ir skirrin' stories spin,
Right down here in Hick'ry Holler,
When the train comes in.

Friends air meetin', friends air partin',
Mothers kiss their boys good-by
As they go t' make their fortune's
Out where hope-winged fancies lie.
Brides and grooms, dressed up and smilin',
Swear they'll stick through thick an' thin,
When they leave ol' Hick'ry Holler
When the train comes in.

Paris Has Richest Chief of Police

Paris, Nov. 14 (AP).—Paris claims the richest chief of police in the world.

He is M. Jean Chiappe, and if there are other chiefs with a chateau in the country and racing stables Paris has not heard of them.

The Chiappe family is one of the most ancient of Corsica. An ancestor of the chief is said to have represented Corsica at the national convention after the revolution of 1789, and it is related that the Chiappes loaned money to Napoleon in his impecunious days, for which the monarch conferred the title of count on the head of the family—a title now held by M. Chiappe's brother.

Chief Chiappe's fortune is equalled, if not exceeded, by that of his sport loving wife, who was Mlle. Marcelle de Villers, a Parisian. She is now the chatelaine of the chateau de Villers at Beauvais, near Paris, which she inherited upon the death of her mother two years ago. The Chiappe stables are located there.

Next to horses, which she rides as well as raises, Mme. Chiappe's pet hobby is a home for incapacitated members of the Paris police staff. She raised $60,000 toward the founding of the home and often makes large gifts to it.

Illegal Nets Seized by State

Game Protectors Prosecuted Two Hundred Fishermen for Violating the Law—Fines and Penalties Over $5,000—Nets Seized Worth $12,166.

Albany, Nov. 14.—During the past year game protectors of the Conservation Department prosecuted 200 persons for the illegal possession and use of nets, collected $5,420.50 in fines and penalties and confiscated $15,166 worth of nets.

Provision is made in the conservation law for the use of nets in certain waters of the state in the taking of fish for commercial purposes. The waters wherein nets are allowed are those in which those species of fish predominate that are not protected and fish the sale of which is permitted under the law. Nets are not licensed by the Department for use in waters inhabited by trout or in waters of limited areas which peculiarly conform to what is commonly accepted as ideal places for the cultivation of angling and other health giving pursuits. In such waters the use of nets either is prohibited by law or not allowed by the department.

Illegal netting when carried on is done under cover of darkness, usually in the early morning hours. The nets are submerged one morning and lifted the following. Greater injury is done to a trout stream by netting it two nights than would result from anglers whipping it daily throughout the open season. All suitable trout streams in the state are annually stocked by the Department with trout from its hatcheries. It is possible by the illegal use of nets or by the use of dynamite to in one night work more havoc in a stream than the stocking efforts of the Department for a season will repair.

To stop this work the Department during the past year made an especial effort. Protectors were instructed to put in a greater number of hours nights on those streams and lakes which bore evidence of illicit netting. This extra effort bore fruit, many a netting gang was broken up. From these violators, and from others that the protectors did not succeed in catching, 456 seines, gills, traps, fykes, scaps and trammel nets were confiscated. It is in the program of the Department to have its protectors continue the drive against this illegal fishing until it is entirely abated.

Apples and Grapes Fewer But Better

New York State Crop Harvested Under Very Favorable Weather Conditions—Apples Have Good Color and Flavor, Grapes Have Higher Sugar Content.

During October when the largest percentage of New York state's grapes and winter apples are normally harvested, the weather was so nearly ideal that practically all of the fruit was harvested and stored in the best of condition, according to a state-federal report just issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Last year, with the almost constant rainy weather during the harvest period, many of the apples were harvested and stored while wet, causing considerable injury to the quality. In addition to this the color and flavor of the fruit never develops as it should due to the lack of sunshine while the fruit was maturing on the trees. This year this was all changed. Warm, sunny weather during October gave good color and flavor to the fruit and allowed what fruit there was to be harvested rapidly.

Another factor working to the advantage of the apple grower was the ability in many cases to do the harvesting with the regular help without resorting to transient labor. This helped to keep labor costs down and allowed the fruit to be handled with more care. Also last year much low grade fruit was not harvested and went to waste with very little besides Grade A or U. S. No. 1 fruit going into storage. This year much second grade fruit is going into storage as well as the first-class fruit since there is such a shortage in the state apple crop. This shortage exists throughout the important apple growing states of the east.

With the New York apple crop practically harvested, it is now estimated at 13,842,000 bushels compared with 40,385,000 bushels last year. Out of this production 2,721,000 barrels are rated as commercial compared with 6,500,000 last year.

In New York, there is a substantially smaller percentage of the crop which will grade No. 1 than last year or than average. This still further reduces the quantity of first-class fruit available for market.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia have slightly over a third as many apples as last year. Virginia slightly over a fourth as many, while Ohio, Michigan and Illinois have only half as large a crop as a year ago.

The three important northwestern states of Idaho, Washington and Oregon together have about 33,150,000 bushels compared with 46,266,000 bushels last season. Of these 9,175,000 barrels are rated as commercial this year in comparison to 11,184,000 barrels in 1926. It is quite evident that close utilization of the entire apple crop is in prospect.

Without sufficient rainfall to plump the unharvested New York state grapes during early October and with nearly all of them harvested on November 1, the crop is estimated at only 51,520 tons compared with 106,700 tons last year. In contrast, however, with the low quality and poor sugar content of last year, this year's crop is of high sugar content and of the best quality. California, with a grape production greater than eleven times that of the remaining grape growing states together, raised the total production of the United States above that of last year.

Study New Rules For Grading Eggs

Chief Egg Inspector for State Department to Explain Regulations at Marketing Session at Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The new egg-grading laws which went into effect in New York state on September 12, 1927, will be discussed and their requirements will be taught at the second annual poultry and egg marketing school at Cornell University here from November 28 to December 3, by F. A. Jones, chief egg inspector for the state department of agriculture and markets at Albany.

According to the poultry department at Cornell, the new grades did away with the cold storage law as it applied to eggs and requires that all eggs be sold according to quality. At present these grades apply only to eggs other than those of a poultryman's own production that are sold to retailers or consumers. But in time the effect of these grades will probably work back through the wholesale channels to producers. At any rate, the department says, it is advisable that all who handle eggs learn the specifications of these grades and understand how to classify eggs according to them.

The most-approved methods of marketing poultry and eggs will be studied in the school which is open to all persons who are interested.

Sending Milk To New England

Emergency Situation Created in New York State by Seasonal Shortage of Supply and Call of New England for Supplies.

Syracuse, Nov. 14.—The recent disastrous floods in Vermont are contributing to the troubles of New York state dairymen, who for the past several months have been making a gallant effort to keep the New York market out of western competition. The announcement of the flood factor was made by Professor H. A. Ross, of the state college of agriculture, Cornell University, before 55 Farm Bureau delegates at the annual meeting of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation. Right at this time when milk production in the state is reaching its lowest point of the year and every drop is needed to supply the New York market, a call for milk has comes from Boston. The flood has cut off her usual quota from Vermont and many of her dealers haven't a drop even for the babies. Milk is being sent regardless of New York's own needs. The Dairymen's League alone is shipping to Boston four carloads a day.

As the result of this, combined with the customary fall shortage of milk, an emergency situation now exists in New York's milk industry. To meet it, it was announced at the meeting by Dr. C. E. Ladd, director of extension at the state college of agriculture, that dairymen are being sent instructions from the state college on how to get more milk from their cows during this critical time. That the shortage is of temporary nature was emphasized by Professor Ross, who stated that if western milk were allowed to come in to relieve it now a permanent injury to the territory would result.

Picture Corn Borer Danger.

Another important topic on the Federation's program was the corn borer situation, which was discussed by L. R. Simons, state supervisor of control methods for this pest. The mightiness of its hosts and the rapidity with which it is spreading over the United States, in spite of the most scientific methods of control, was vividly pictured by Mr. Simons. Printed leaflets, giving the latest control measures, were distributed to delegates, and it was stated that this coming year greater efforts than ever will be made to halt the advance of the borer.

A joint dinner for Farm and Home Bureau Federation delegates was held at the Onondaga Hotel. The principal speaker was Edward O'Neil, vice-president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Ulster County Winner Announced.

It was announced at the dinner that the winner of the prize in the state-wide kitchen contest, recently put on by the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus, and the American Agriculturist, was Mrs. David DuBois, of Ulster county. Mrs. DuBois received $50, the prize being awarded by the American Agriculturist. Three other Home Bureau members were awarded second, third and fourth places in the contest, and received prizes of $25, $15 and $10 respectively, from the American Agriculturist.

SEVERAL FIRES KEPT FIRE DEPARTMENT BUSY SUNDAY.

The fire department was called out on several still alarms of fire on Sunday. A fire in a clothes closet on the bathroom in the house at 43 Jarrold street, occupied by Fred C. Harder, was extinguished with slight damage. Grass fires on South Wall street at the Zion Cemetery and on the Ups and Downs off West Chestnut street called out the department Sunday afternoon. In the evening a fire in some bedding in a building used for storage at the Tuberculosis Hospital caused a still alarm to be sent in. The damage was slight.

The Water Spider

A correspondent of English Country Life describes a peculiar spider that lives under water the greater part of its life. It builds a dome-like nest of silk among weeds in ponds and ditches, and fills the nest with air. In that strange house it lives and lays its eggs. In autumn it makes another nest at a greater distance below the surface of the water, and, having sealed itself inside, it sleeps until spring. Taken out of the water, the spider looks like any other, but as soon as it is put back, the bubble of air that it collects round its body makes it look like a ball of quicksilver. It is the only spider that has taken to a wholly aquatic life, says the writer.

Roving Radio Told of Deluge

Massachusetts Institute of Technology and The Associated Press Organized Radio Expedition to Tell World About Vermont Floods

Boston, Nov. 14 (AP)—When floods swept across New England and wiped away the normal facilities of communication, two roving radio's installed in motor cars penetrated the stricken regions of Vermont, hardest hit of the suffering states, and carried the story to the outside world.

At the first news of the flood, the radio expedition was organized by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in cooperation with The Associated Press.

Two cars, equipped with powerful short-wave sets, started out in charge of J. K. Clapp, instructor in the radio research laboratories of the institute. A. H. Brolly and L. T. Goldsmith went from the school to assist in operation of the radio and Paul S. Walcott, of the Boston Bureau of The Associated Press, accompanied the party to gather and write the stories of the flood.

Plowing through water-swept roads the cars reached Brattleboro and established one station. The second car pressed northward, sending back news to the first station as it went. The relayed messages were received at Massachusetts Tech at Cambridge and the experimental station on the estate of Col. H. H. Green at South Dartmouth, Mass.

From both receiving stations the reports were telephoned to The Associated Press at Boston and sent by wire thence throughout the country.

The traveling station was designated IXM. It operated on a 40-meter wave length in daytime and on 80 meters at night.

Henry Maines, West Hurley postman, had the good luck to shoot a 250-pound deer Sunday morning. Mr. Maines left his home for the district about the Ashokan reservoir at approximately 7 o'clock and had been out less than an hour when he bagged the buck. He had no trouble getting the animal out of the woods to place on his car.

Vituperation Had Big Part in Old Campaign

When a man was a candidate for President in the early days of the United States it generally was with the knowledge that the campaign would be hot, with the air full of nasty invective. One of the warmest fights was that between the supporters of Andrew Jackson and the friends of John Quincy Adams. Adams had had a long public career and apparently had given satisfaction until the campaign started. Then everything that could be raked up against him was hurled in a merciless storm of abuse.

It was claimed among many other things that Adams had, while minister to Russia, given up an American servant girl of Mrs. Adams to the emperor and that he had applied the White House funds to the purchase of gaming tables (he actually had bought a billiard table). The Jacksonites found plenty was also known about their candidate.

The general's quarrels, duels, his gamecocks, his swearing, his "murder" of deserting militiamen at Mobile, his contempt of court at New Orleans, his insubordinate invasion of Florida, and his marriage. That was the big talking point, his marriage.

Tact and good sense were forgotten. Venomous pamphlets, countless editorials, the verse and chorus of endless shameful ballads all told of "that brazen hussy, that no-account, vulgar, disreputable little frump, his wife." The general managed to keep most of these cowardly attacks from her and did not countenance the invective that his supporters hurled in return.—Kansas City Star.

Keeping Lemons

Lemons may be saved from getting hard by keeping them covered with cold water. It is said that lemons kept in this manner will also be more juicy. The water should be changed once a week.

Pratt Bitten in Hand by Monkey

Jocko Broke Out of His Cage in Municipal Building on Sunday and Inflicted Bad Wound in Hand Which Required 5 Stitches to Close.

William H. Pratt, engineer employed by the board of public works, and better known as "Billy" Pratt, is nursing an extremely sore hand where he was bitten by Jocko, the monkey, who is spending the winter in the board of public works barn on East O'Reilly street. Dr. Frederick Snyder found it necessary to take five stitches to close the wound.

Jocko, who is an ugly beast, broke out of his cage on Sunday and Mr. Pratt entered the barn to catch the animal, who had knocked over the telephone and was playing havoc in the office. He had no trouble in inducing Jocko to leap onto his shoulder and then he started to walk toward the cage.

Just as they reached the cage Jocko turned and nipped Mr. Pratt in the shoulder, inflicting a nasty dig and tearing the outer shirt. As Jocko nipped him in the shoulder, "Billy" reached for him with his other hand and as he did so Jocko grasped Billy's left hand in his mouth.

Pratt then grasped the animal by the throat with his right hand and hurled Jocko against the side wall. Jocko made a leap for Pratt who kicked him several times without failing to subdue the monkey. Later Pratt was able to get the monkey back into the cage, but it was only a short while later that the monkey broke loose again and Mr. Pratt telephoned for William S. Campbell, who has charge of the barn. Mr. Campbell came over and worked for several hours before he was able to get Jocko back into his cage.

Few Outstanding Games Saturday

Harvard Has Been Conceded Little Chance of Stopping Yale—Prepare For Games on Thanksgiving Day.

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Blustery climes of mid-November and the approach of another Harvard-Yale football game signaled to eastern stadiums today that the end of the 1927 grid season was in sight.

For generations now the clashes of these two bulwarks of the shattered "Big Three" have drawn their colorful throngs to the banks of the Charles or to New Haven for battles that oftimes crowned a sectional or even national champion. And this fall finds the situation unchanged with Harvard alone barring Yale's drive to the head of the eastern pigskin legions.

Into the huge concrete horseshoe at Cambridge Yale will fling an eleven next Saturday that has humbled Army—conquerors of Notre Dame—Dartmouth, and Princeton. Against a foe that came from behind to sweep the Tiger aside 14 to 6 in the final eight minutes of play last Saturday, Harvard can throw only an eleven that has met defeat every other week since the start of the season.

Although pre-game form often has proven of little comparative value in Harvard-Yale meetings of the past, the Crimson team has been conceded little chance of halting the Eli surge. Only Georgia, leading candidate for national honors, has been able to whip Yale this season, and then only when the Bull Dog was a rather erratic puppy in shaky early season form.

Harvard hopes will hang this week on a drive to coordinate an offense that trimmed Brown 18 to 6 Saturday. In that game the Crimson line worked steadily as a unit for the first time this season, tackling and interference, were improved, and the star backs, French and Guarnaccia, appeared fully recovered from injuries that handicapped them all fall.

With most of the major intersectional battles written into grid history now in the form of the past weeks' scores, and other leading elevens along the Atlantic seaboard watching "breathers" before the climax struggles of Thanksgiving day, few outstanding games appeared on Saturday's schedule.

Army and Navy prepare for their final battle November 26 against Virginus and Loyola at Baltimore respectively. Georgetown meets Fordham in a jesuit school classic and the battered unit of Lehigh and Lafayette stage their annual struggle.

Other contests bring together Syracuse and Niagara, New York University and Alleghany, Brown and New Hampshire, Holy Cross and Boston University, and Carnegie Tech and Detroit.

CHANDLERS WON FROM WARRINGTONS

The Chandler basketball team defeated the Warrington All-Stars on the Y. M. C. A. court Saturday night, 38-15. It is their third victory of the season. Niles led the Chandler scorers with 12 points while Kennedy corralled 10 for the same team. The score:

College Football Race At a Glance

Yale Holds Major Claim to Eastern Honors—Leaders in Other Sections Have Clean Slates.

(By The Associated Press.)

With only one major shift involved, in which Yale moved over Princeton to the top of the eastern list, the latest series of college football battles found the following status to the various conferences or mythial sectional championship existing today:

Yale, by defeat of the hitherto unbeaten Princeton eleven, holds major claim to eastern honors. Ellis, neither beaten nor tied in east, suffered only reverse in intersectional combat with Georgia. Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson, with single tie as result of their own game, closest contenders among major elevens.

Western Conference "Big Ten".

Illinois, with clean slate of four victories and no defeats in conference games, heads list. Tie earlier with Iowa State only mar on record of Illini. Minnesota, tied by Indiana, ranks second in conference.

Missouri Valley Conference.

Missouri, disposing of Iowa State, leads with four victories, no defeats or ties, in conference race. Nebraska, with three victories and one defeat by Missouri, is second.

Southern Conference.

Georgia, at top, with five conference victories, no defeats or ties, plus prestige of intersectional victory over Yale. North Carolina State also unbeaten in three conference games, but Tennessee and Georgia Tech each tied once and Vanderbilt twice, although all undefeated.

Southwestern Conference.

Texas Aggies, with three victories and no setbacks, set the pace for Arkansas and Southern Methodist each with one conference defeat.

Rocky Mountain Conference.

Each of contenders has one defeat but Colorado Aggies, with five victories, and Colorado College with four, have best records. Utah and Montana State next in line.

Pacific Coast Conference.

Stanford, in spite of two upsets at hands of non-conference teams, shares leading honors with Southern California. Neither has met defeat in conference, their own battle was a tie, but Stanford has three conference victories to two for U. S. C. Washington with three victories and one defeat ranks next.

JACK SHARKEY INJURES HAND IN TRAINING

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—A report that Jack Sharkey, king pin of the youthful heavyweight contenders until he met Jack Dempsey last summer, had injured a hand in training, sent Tex Rickard searching today for an emergency opponent to face Tom Heeney, New Zealand champion, in the feature bout at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The match may be set ahead until December 1, however, unless an X-ray examination of Sharkey's hand in Boston today shows nothing more than a superficial hurt, it was indicated. Sharkey is said to have injured the hand in a sparring bout.

Women Bowlers to Meet.

Kingston High Beat Port Jervis

Local Gridders Score Two Touchdowns in Game with Port Jervis—Port Team Scores in First Period.

Kingston High School football won from Port Jervis Saturday at the latter's gridiron, 14-6. The scores of Kingston were made in the third and fourth quarters by the forward pass method. The Port club received their six points when in the first quarter the fleet-footed Pat Duffy intercepted one of Kingston's passes and ran sixty-five yards for a touchdown. The game was a thriller in which the Kingston boys outplayed their opponents from the start to the final whistle.

The plays that scored for Kingston were passes registered by Molyneaux to Watts in the third quarter and Jones to Brown in the last quarter. Phil McDonald, captain, acted well as tackle and opened many holes throughout the game.

The First Quarter.

Clark kicked off for Kingston and the ball traveled over the goal line. The ball was brought out to the Port twenty yard line. Port Jervis then kicked. Kingston made a first down. After being penalized Kingston lost the ball. The ball exchanged hands several times. Near the end of the first period with the locals in possession of the ball, Duffy for Port Jervis intercepted a forward pass and raced 65 yards for a touchdown. The extra point was not made. Port Jervis, 6; Kingston, 0.

Second Quarter.

Starting the second quarter the Port team in possession of the ball on their 45-yard line made a first down, when Duffy took the ball around right end. A forward pass netted fifteen yards. After several line bucks Kingston got the ball. Kingston kicked. Through hard line smashing Kingston made two first downs up to the Port 30-yard line. A fumble gave the Port team the ball. Molyneaux, Merrill and Myers after Kingston received the ball on a punt plunged through the line and brought the ball to the five-yard line as the half ended.

Third Quarter.

These same Kingston players started off in the second half to rip the Port Line and make good gains. A forward pass, Molyneaux to Watts, netted Kingston a touchdown. It was a beautiful pass, which caught the Port team sleeping. Kingston made the extra point and went into the lead, 7 to 6.

Last Quarter.

The local players in the final period continued their march and made a number of first downs. Another forward pass, Jones to Watts, accounted for Kingston's second touchdown. Again the extra point was made.

The Line-ups.

Albany Quintet Here Wednesday

The Albany quintet of the Metropolitan League, will be the attraction at the local armory court Wednesday evening. Kingston lost its second game of the season at Albany last week and are out to even up matters.

The locals will probably use Conaty and Knothe in the forward positions. Yerkes and Husta, guards and Kinzig center.

Astronomical Mystery

The stellar universe has a background of pearly white, which always finds the field of a telescope with a faint luminosity, and astronomers are guessing as to whether this shimmering shroud is made of quadrillions of suns, or whether the universe is immersed in nebulous matter. The pearl veil is torn in places, at least a hundred jet-black wells of dark space being shown in the constellation Sagitarius and Scorpio. In one of these dark fields is Antares, which is computed to be at a vast distance from the earth, and to have 88,000 times the mass of our sun.

Golf Association Adopts Schedule

The annual meeting of the Hudson River Golf Association was held Saturday, November 12, at the Powelton Club, Newburgh. Henry Lloyd, Jr., of Poughkeepsie, was re-elected president of the association for the ensuing year and all of the present officials were continued.

A schedule for the Saturdays at golf for the 1928 season was adopted as follows:

June 2, Rockwood Hall Club, Tarrytown.
June 16, Twaalfskill Club, Kingston.
June 30, Powelton Club, Newburgh.
July 14, Hollow Brook Club, Peekskill.
July 28, Houvenkoupf Club, Suffern.
August 11, Rockland Club, Nyack.
August 25, Dutchess Club, Poughkeepsie.
September 8, Hudson River Club, Yonkers.
September 22, Orange County Club, Middletown.
October 6, Columbia Club, Hudson.

It was voted to elliminate the annual dinner of the association during the ensuing year.

The date of the annual tournament of the association was fixed for June 28, 29 and 30, at the Powelton Club, Newburgh. The same rules and regulations in regard to prizes and play were adopted for the coming season. Following the business meeting a dinner was served at the club.

Yellow Jackets Were Idle Sunday

All set to give Poughkepsie gridders a hot time, the Kingston Yellow Jackets were disappointed Sunday, when the team failed to show up. About five or six boys came here to play but could hardly make a showing. The game was called and the fans, who had purchased score cards were refunded their money.

A large crowd was in attendance despite the uncertainty of the game due to last minute change of heart of the Poughkeepsie players.

The West Point Service eleven is booked to play the Yellow Jackets next Sunday at the Fair Grounds.

The Yellow Jackets will practice Tuesday night, beginning at 6 o'clock. Captain McLane requests all members be present.

McDermott Playing Basketball.

Maury McDermott, popular Colonial baseball player, is now engaged on the basketball court and is displaying equal ability in tossing the leather through the hoops. He recently scored 22 points for Highland against the Mohawks, who lost to McDermott's quintet 40-32. Sixteen of the points scored by McDermott were made by fields.

School No. 8 Entertainment.

The Parent Teacher Association of School No. 8 will give an entertainment in the school on the evening of November 18 at 8 o'clock. There will be a small charge for admission. Ice cream and home made candy for sale.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Two days and nights of good reception have delighted the fans. There was occasional static but not enough to greatly impair reception. WTAM was the star among DX stations both Saturday and Sunday evenings and was the best station from which to receive the Atwater Kent program. At 7:45 Sunday evening, lasting 15 minutes, there was a new kind of combination hum-buzz-scratchy noise. WJAX, WCFL, WSB, WBAP, WLS, WJR, WSM and WTAM were the best DX stations both nights. There was some fading, the worst being WJZ, WGY and WEAF.

The ceremony of President Coolidge's presentation to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh of the National Geographic Society's Hubbard Gold Medal will be broadcast this evening, at 8:45 o'clock, by WJZ and the Blue network.

President Coolidge, Colonel Lindberg and Assistant Secretary for Aviation MacCracken of the Department of Commerce will speak for ten minutes each. Members of the Supreme Court, the president's cabinet, the diplomatic corps and ranking officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will be present. The orchestra of the United States Marine Band will furnish the music.

Buddenhagen Won Tourney.

The first fall caddies' tournament of Twaalfskill Golf Club was played Sunday afternoon between Frank Ackley and Clarence Buddenhagen. The latter won the match by three up and two to go. The trophy is a handsome loving cup and is now on display in the window of Safford & Scudder's jewelry store where it will remain for the next few days.

When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mother: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Price movements in today's stock market lacked uniformity, renewal of selling pressure against some of the leading industrials being offset by a resumption of bullish operations in a wide assortment of specialties. Call money was in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 3½ per cent.

There was little in the day's news to influence the market. Reports of merger negotiations in the drug trade stimulated the buying of those shares, several of which advanced 3 to 5 points. Mail order and mercantile shares continued to respond to expectations of record breaking holiday trade as a result of the large increase in farm wealth this year.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors were in rather free supply but offerings were well taken. Strength of the coppers reflected the recent increase in the export price of the commodity, and the belief that the recent formation of the copper institute would help stabilize the industry. Rails were rather quiet, although Chesapeake and Ohio was run up more than 3 points and half a dozen or so others advanced a point or more.

American Railway Express ran up nearly six points and was followed into new high ground by nearly a score other issues, including Kennecott and Magma Coppers, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester and American Can. Gabriel snubbers was an outstanding weak spot, breaking nearly 5 points.

Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city, branch office, 260 Fair street.

ORPHAN ASYLUM BAND CONCERT HERE FRIDAY.

Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets, is concentrating all efforts upon making the concert of the Wartburg Orphan Asylum Brass Band a success as far as attendance is concerned. The concert will be held on Friday night of this week, commencing at eight o'clock in the church basement. The leader is Prof. Steinmetz, who has instructed the boys' bands in this institution for over twenty-five years. No admission will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken for the benefit of the institution.

The boys like to play to large audiences, and the church basement can accommodate easily five hundred people. Each year the band changes, because each year certain ones leave the institution, their time having expired, to enter some position provided for them. This fact necessitates their resigning from the band.

The following members of the church will entertain the boys and the professor in their homes during their stay here from Friday to Saturday: Mrs. P. Barmann, Mrs. D. Finnegan, Mrs. B. Fox, Mrs. E. Gross, Mrs. A. Krenz, Mrs. R. Krueger, Mrs. P. Kullmann, Mrs. F. Latour, Mrs. G. Marks, Mrs. C. Marks, Sr., Mrs. W. Marks, Sr., Mrs. E. Remus, Mrs. I. Smith.

The director of the institution, the Rev. S. Von Bosse, will be guest at the parsonage.

The band will arrive on Friday afternoon at the Rhinebeck ferry on the Strand at 4:55, where the Rev. Mr. Pretzsch and other hosts will meet to receive the boys and designate them to their quarters.

Why Shouldn't He?

Timidity

Timidity developed in childhood, and never overcome with age, has blocked the path of success for a multitude. Realize that nothing can be expected of you beyond your best performance. If you are willing to give that, why be timid? So long as you are doing as well as you know, rest easy. Nobody has any claim to make you do differently. Nobody can flabbergast you.

Killed by Gun in Playmate's Hands

Virgil C. Lawrence, the fourteen year old son of John K. Lawrence, was fatally shot at Alligerville Sunday by a younger playmate who picked up a rifle which the former had placed on the ground while he stepped a few feet distant to examine a hole in the ground made by a small animal.

Young Lawrence and his companion were near his home in Alligerville playing with the rifle. It is said the gun belongs to the dead boy's father. The rifle was placed on the ground by the Lawrence boy so that he could examine the hole nearby. His companion picked up the gun and it was discharged. Lawrence received the charge in his shoulder and died shortly after.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 1 p. m. from the home of his father, with interment in Benton Bar Cemetery, Kyserike.

Colonial Choristers Popular.

The success of the Colonial Choristers in their initial appearance as a group of singers at the Victory Ball last Friday night is a source of much gratification to Kingstonians. The four members of these singers gave proof of fine ensemble work in precision, phrasing diction and nuance of tone. They are organized for professional work and should be in great demand. Lillian Hemsted of New York city has coached them in all the special details of this exacting work.

258 Private Game Farms in State

They Help to Conserve State's Supply of Wild Life and Solve Problem of Supplying Game Without Violation of Law.

Albany, Nov. 14—The Conservation Department during the past year licensed 258 persons to operate private game farms and collected from the sale of licenses for that purpose $1,290.

When the sale of wild game was permitted years ago it was recognized that this was in a large measure responsible for the steadily diminishing amount of wild life to be found in the covers each year, and that unless action was taken to stop it, not a few species would in a short time follow the path of the wild pigeons, being completely exterminated by market hunters. Accordingly a law was placed upon the statute books prohibiting the buying and selling of wild game. But plainly there was a demand for game, so until a way was found to supply the demand the benefits it was hoped would accrue to wild life from the passage of the law would not be felt, for as long as there remained a market there would remain hunters to supply it.

The problem was to find a way to supply the demand for game in some way other than at the expense of the wild life. The solution was found in a law providing for the raising in captivity of certain species of game, and for the killing and selling of it for food after it had been marked for identification by the Conservation Department.

Cost One Violator $20,000.

In the earlier years of the law a few farms endeavored to evade the law by selling wild game. Detections followed and the violators were punished—one man settling with the state for $20,000. It is now only occasionally that a complaint is received by the department that one of the farms suspected of violating the law or the terms of its license. On the whole the law providing for the raising of game for consumption has worked out admirably, and must be considered a forward step toward the preservation of wild life.

The game that may be raised on game farms in this state comprise American elk, fallow deer and Japanese deer, peacock, pheasants, Canada geese, mallard ducks, black ducks, bob-white quail and Hungarian or grey leg partridge. When killed and tagged as prescribed by rules of the department these species may be sold for food. Pheasants and mallard ducks are the species most commonly found on these farms. Reports made to the department indicate there were raised on the farms last year 15,020 mallard ducks, 9,222 black ducks, 29,145 pheasants, 324 deer and 70 Canada geese. Not all this game was sold. A considerable part of it was given away to friends of licensees, and to charitable institutions, and no small number of birds were liberated for stocking purposes.

Training Boy and Girl for Home Life

They Are Trained to Earn a Living, Says North Carolina Extension Worker, but Courses Are Not Provided to Make Home Life Successful.

"The woman who cannot get out of a dollar the worth of every one of the hundred cents and who throws her husband into debt because she does not know her part of the business of home making does many times set the stage for marital shipwreck," said Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon, assistant director of extension in North Carolina, to the delegates to the eighth annual meeting of the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus in Syracuse last week. "We train a boy to earn a living, or send him to college with that aim in view but we do do not provide in his school or college courses that which will train him to be a good husband, a good father, or a good family man."

Mrs. McKimmon declared the job of home-making to be a highly specialized one. The health of the family is in the home maker's hands. This is a day of scientific feeding.

She told of a family incident. A mother, entertaining a home demonstration agent who expected to start a class in homemaking, excused herself from the breakfast table to feed her two weeks' old chickens. "I have studied feeding formulas and am delighted with results," she said. Yet her two children seized each two biscuits, between the halves of one a fat sausage was placed, into a little well in the top of the other some syrup was poured. And this was their mid-day meal.

The chickens had milk. The mother did not think to give to each child a bottle of milk. The chicks were turned into a field of tender, green oats. There was no lettuce or fruit in the children's lunch. The proper proportions of each kind of needed food was given the chicks. The children chose what they would. "Isn't this to be seen in some form everywhere?" she asked. "And do not the husbands and the children bear in their bodies to their dying day the marks of the mother's lack of knowledge or of her ignorance? We do not today talk so much of 'poor constitutions' as of the ignorance of mothers."

The speaker mentioned the woman who feeds her husband not wisely but too well, as is witnessed by too capacious waist bands and the roll of fat overlaying his collar. "It is not only attractive, appetizing food that is necessary," she said, "but food chosen for what it can do as a bone builder, muscle builder, energy giver and a conditioner."

The woman trained for her job in life is also to know some time saving, that she may have time for the bigger things in life for a period apart for the renewing of the spirit that will enable her to come with composure and unfretted nerves to the time of companionship with her husband and children.

8 Persons Die In Hotel Fire

Indianapolis, Nov. 14 (AP).—Five different investigations of the fire that swept through the second and third floors of the three floor brownstone apartment hotel Sunday, causing the deaths of eight persons, were under way today. Twelve persons were injured, most of them from jumping from upper story windows.

Chief of Police Claude M. Worley declared the structure was a "tinder box." W. A. Osborn, city building commissioner, advanced the theory that the fire may have been of incendiary origin.

The fire entailed damage amounting to only $6,000 to $7,000. All of the dead were found in the second and third floor corridors, where most of the fire damage was done.
